

Assessment of human skin damage following exposure to harmful agents

The present invention relates to the assessment of ultraviolet radiation UV effects on sunscreen-treated and non-treated human skin using a more sensitive technique.
