

RoadSim: a software solution for the planning of forest roads

RoadSim is a software solution for the planning of forest roads according to the lumber sites, topography, sources of gravel for the roads, and transport requirements (truck speed, road security, etc.). The algorithm is divided into two steps: an initial road network implementation according to the construction costs followed by an update that takes into account the transportation costs.
